

Norwegian Prospecting

Secretary Layfield showed an Eagle reporter this morning an interesting letter from Christian J. Larsen, Vice-Consul to Charleston, from Norway, inquiring as to the chief products of this section. This prominent Norwegian seems especially interested in the cotton industry. He inquired of the number of bales ginned and marketed here within the past two years, the number of compresses, etc. It is thought the Vice-Consul is seeking a location for some of his brethren in Norway.

A very prominent South Alabama strawberry grower is also in communication with the Commercial Club. He is one of the most successful berry growers in the state, and if a reasonable proposition in regard to freight rates and other requirements can be made it is almost certain that he will locate here. The gentleman requires that as many as fifty farmers in this section agree to set out two acres in strawberries each, in order that shipments in car load lots may be made. Farmers wishing to further look into the matter may see either W. F. Newton, J. R. Faircloth or O. E. Williams.

Mrs. Taylor Better.

The delightful news was brought to town this morning of the marked convalescence of Mrs. Joe Taylor, who has been so seriously ill for several days. Slight hopes for her recovery were had Sunday, but late yesterday it was seen that she was considerably better, and her recovery is now regarded as probable.

The $5 paid into this office at one time on subscription still gets the candidates for the piano and watch 600 votes. If they don't want the daily, give them the weekly.

President A. B. Steele, and his attorney, Mr. Thompson, of Atlanta, and vice-president G. H. Purvis, were in the city today, and held a directors meeting of the Dothan and St. Andrews, Bay railroad.

The Woman's Missionary Meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Kevton on N. Oates street yesterday afternoon, in celebration of the Alabama Baptist Centennial. About 40 ladies were present and some interesting papers were read on subjects pertaining to the occasion, chiefest among them being a clever article from Mrs. Hudson, whose subject was the "State Work."

THE BLOOD LINE.

Most Patent Factor in Telling the Correct Story of Descent.

A drop of the blood of a walrus shows no relation with a drop of whale's blood or of the blood of any other cetacean, such as seals or porpoises, which, like the walrus, are mammals that have taken to the sea, says Dr. William Hanna Thompson in Everybody's. Instead of that, the blood of the walrus immediately reacts with the blood of horses, asses and zebras, thus proving that he is an equine that no longer crops grass, but goes where he can live on an exclusively fish diet. Likewise the hippopotamus is shown to be a modified fish.

Where the blood relationship exists, but is distant, these reactions are proportionately faint, but where no reactions occur there is no relationship at all. Thus geology indicates that birds are descended from reptiles, and, oddly enough, the blood of a bird shows a distinct though very faint reaction with the blood of a snake, but none whatever with that of the winged bat or the flying squirrel, for these are mammals.

On the other hand, the marsupials, once such a great family, but now reduced to the kangaroo, the opossum and a small creature in South America, have not a single blood relation left. As to man, he has no relationship to monkeys, but the blood of anthropoid apes shows a very faint reaction with his. Meantime all the races of man are unmistakably of one blood, whatever their color or abode.

Hence the blood is by far the most hereditary thing about us. Neither the shape of the skeleton nor the contour of the body nor brain, heart, lungs, stomach, intestines, liver or skin nor even ancestral habits about the great food question—how to eat or keep from being eaten—are comparable to a single drop of blood for telling the correct story of descent. All this gives a new meaning to the words, "For the blood thereof is the life thereof." Likewise the old saying that "man and ape in the blood now wears a scar" take new blood and family are so inseparably associated.

Sunday School Philosophy.

A Sunday school teacher had instructed her class that each child should repeat a verse of Scripture when the offering was made. The plate, containing many pennies, had gone down the line when the child next the last said, "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," depositing a nickel.

Either the verses had given out or the child at the end of the bench was overcome at her neighbor's generosity, for she said "A fool and his money are soon parted."

The New Bank Building.

The building on the corner of Foster and Main streets, recently vacated by Hammond, is being torn away by the First National Bank people. The walls will be torn away and rebuilt from the ground. The floor will be something like two feet higher than it is and the side walks will be raised, preventing the overflow that occurs now when it rains.

The building will be of pressed brick, the color not yet decided. The Foster street entrance will be about ten feet north of the corner, and the Main street entrance in the center. The windows of plate glass, with double doors of plate glass. Instead of the corner of the building being round, it will come out square. No stairway in front, but on the side, where it now is.

The base of the windows and interior finish will be of marble, and the floor of marble tile. That part of the building which was in the barber shop, will be E. R. Malone's guano office, and lobby, with entrance to the front of the bank.

The Ghent Jewelry store will not be used by the bank, but when it is remodeled and finished with the other, will be re-occupied by Mr. Ghent.

The bank expects it to cost something like $20,000 to do the work they have planned. Contractor H. H. Brown is doing the work, and he has a good record as a builder.

Eastern Star.

A regular monthly meeting of the Eastern Star will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30, at the Masonic Hall. All the members are cordially requested to be present on time.

Unhappy Illustration.

"Johnny," said a teacher to a grocery man's six-year-old, "a lie can be acted as well as told. Now, if your father would put sand in his sugar and sell it he would be acting a lie and doing very wrong." "That's what mother told him," said Johnny impetuously, "and he said he didn't care."

Some one said "Life without a friend is death without a witness." The more you look at this, the bigger it gets.

Many true words are spoken in jest, for that's the only way you can afford to tell some people the truth.

He that always complains is never pitted, and he that never complains gets his shoeleather trampled upon in life's game.

Hearst must have put out that story about his papers being under a four million dollar mortgage, thinking to catch the vote of the common folks.

The man who makes a practice of trying to kill two birds with one stone, will let a whole drove go by that he might have singled.

The people of Dothan go to almost anything called a show, where a fair price is charged, and Ben Pilcher hopes to remedy that in time by providing a first class opera house.

The next three months will be the thick cream of the mercantile business in Dothan, and those interested, should do what they can to get people to come here to do their buying.

It does look a howling shame that when a President of the United States uses the power of his office to elect the man to succeed himself, that he ought to be able to get along without so much explaining, letter writing, etc.

A Runaway.

The first runaway of the cool snap period occurred the first thing this morning, just as a businessman was coming to his work and picking his teeth. "T," as one of those Maudish animals attached to a Jersey wagon, standing at the Hammond corner when he got too chilly to be comfortable and dashed off down Main at break neck speed, but the brakes were applied before he had gone a mile and was stopped by a man in a tuxedo.

The man in the tuxedo, who was a member of the Dothan Club, and who had been out for a spin, stopped the runaway and reminded the questioner that this was Tuesday, and that he didn't propose to stand for it.

Some of the highbrowed magazines publish an article occasionally telling how to select diamonds, expensive jewels, cut-glass, and other things bought mainly by the fifty-per cent. but such truck is out of the reach of the moderately well-to-do.

J. J. Crary is spending a few days in Dothan finishing up his business, preparatory to taking up his residence in Montgomery, wherd he recently went. He is with the Kruger barber shop on Dexter Avenue, which is said to be about the most favorable stand in Montgomery.

"Good Enough" Habit.

There is a habit, very easily contracted, which every one in business or otherwise should avoid. It is the "good enough" habit.

If you are building a house and use some of the timber just because it looks quite right on the surface, what an oversight! The ultimate work point will give way and a disaster may occur. So the cautious builder makes sure of using good timber.

So it is in every phase of life. Don't be content with anything as "good enough." It may be the time when you are looking for what is worth the trouble.

Starvation.
After about the fifth or sixth day of starvation the pain of hunger ceases to be felt, and the sharp edge of craving becomes dulled. In the ultimate stages of starvation the feelings become so benumbed that the senses, as messengers of intelligence, cease to act. There is practically no pain, and the mind lapses into a state of incoherence and sleepless delirium.

Concealing Mrs. Ignorance.
In order not to expose her ignorance the schoolboy gave an evasive reply when asked in examination, "Which was the greater, Caesar or Hannibal?" He answered, "If we consider war and Hannibal were and themselves which of them was the greater, we must unhesitatingly in the affirmative."
